Important disclaimer: I've since learned that back in January 2020, one of the people mentioned in the document that I had issues with (Charlie/ChannelGrayVEVO) was publicly called out by Donnimation for indecently exposing their private parts to them, made them feel incredibly uncomfortable, and has manipulated them and others to remain quiet about various instances where they were called out for anything. I share a few bits of condolences for those affected by Charlie, and if I might've accidentally misremembered what Donnie's document said or said things I didn't mean to, then I apologize.

However, I do want to end this disclaimer with this little bit of information. For someone like Charlie to tell me to go seek chemical castration because Leo and others interpreted what I said in the worst way imaginable, that comment is ironic given they thought that showing their penis to a former significant other was even a remotely good idea. Good riddance.

To better explain why I don't like Charlie as a person, here is a Google Doc I wrote all the way back in 2018 detailing my experience with them. It's a little outdated thanks to what happened in early 2020, but it's still worth sharing:

After what transpired, I could not stop thinking about this situation, even after nearly a whole month has passed as I'm writing this. This whole drama has affected me in ways that feels like it'll never be repaired. Allow me to explain my side of the story to the best of my ability. Please try to give me a chance if you end up clicking on this and read it all the way through instead of passing it up and avoiding it simply because it's written by me.

Chapter 0: Introduction

I am the person formerly known as George Raccoon. I'm a 24 (now 25) year old male who lives in Mexico, is a traditional artist, I have high functioning autism, and since October 6, 2019, I have been painted as a pedophile, a sexual predator, and a child groomer by a good majority of my former friends.

I've known many of these former friends of mine for 4 years since 2015, and because of what happened, they have shunned me, disassociated with me, ran me off and saw me as someone who is vile and dangerous.

Leo is a 16 (now 17) year old non binary transgender male who lives in Sweden.

Chapter 1: The NSFW account, Snow White and the First Mistake (2016)

This all began back in 2016, when I first created the NSFW Twitter account of mine. However, since the account is completely gone now, I can only talk about what has been presented so far from Leo's document, and what I can recollect from my own memory.

The idea I had with the account was that in it, I could share my love for magic tricks to people that would want to hear about it. Around that time I think was when I discovered that I had a strange kink: women that vanished while covered up in a cloth would get a sexual reaction out of me, mostly something extremely mild.

To be absolutely clear about this aspect when talking about my NSFW, in my mind, whenever I shared magic videos with people in a DM, I don't think "Man I want them to be a part of my kink" or "Man I want them to have the same kink as me". I typically think to myself "Hopefully they'll like this video when I send it to them".

All I wrote in the rules I made of my own account was that magic tricks had to do with a kink of mine. I never clarified at all that when I sent my mutuals those videos, it wasn't because of anything lewd or wanting to force them to have the same kink as me, but it was instead to simply share the videos with them to see if they liked it. Because I didn't, they assumed the worst of my own intentions and saw what I did as harmful.

The other part that was related to the account was about the Disney Princess Snow White. My own history with the character and why I started liking her a lot is mostly unimportant to this document, so I will focus on what is important: what did I do with the character in the account. What I mostly did was draw established characters and my own OCs (and prior to the drama, other people's OCs) wearing Snow White's dress.

Another thing to fully clarify is that whenever I see the character herself, or draw/see other characters wearing her dress, I feel no sexual reaction upon doing so, nor did I have any kind of sexual thoughts. I recall putting that clarification among my later set of rules (including the ones that were around when Leo was following the account). The following image was taken from the latest set of rules prior to the NSFW account's deactivation, and was only cropped, while it was not edited or recently made in any way, shape or form.

I drew other people's OCs wearing her dress to see if they would like it or not. Some mistook the love I have for Snow White (and one aspect I'll talk about later) as if she is a kink of mine or something that gets me off, when that is simply not true. It seems to be based off of the fact that I posted the drawings in the NSFW account, so therefore to them, she must be a kink of mine, when they could've asked me directly, and I would've clarified right away.

In hindsight, one of the only aspects I truly did wrong with the account was drawing three specific people vanishing in a trick, as that definitely did make me look really bad in hindsight. I'll focus on the one with Leo a little later, but for now, I'm going to focus on the other two that I drew vanishing: Gwen and Autumn. Back in 2016, I asked them if they wanted to follow it, and they said yes. At the time, they were dating each other, and so not only did I drew them in the dress, but I asked them if they wanted me to draw them in one of the tricks I showed them (Dekolta Chair). They eventually said yes, but I had no idea that they felt grossed out. They didn't give me any indication about how they truly felt at that moment. Regardless, it's one of the drawings I don't look back at fondly in general.

Now I want to point out something important about all of this regarding Gwen and Autumn. When Leo's Google Doc dropped on October 6, Gwen wrote this in a tweet about me (which I wasn't able to see on my main because she blocked me on it, and I never found out about it until weeks later):

If you guys have any questions at all about George my DM's are open.
I've witnessed this behavior before and outright stopped George from doing this to Leo back in 2017 but he did it anyway 2 years later.
He also drew his fetish using me and Autumn when we were 16 and dating

He pressured both Autumn and I to let him draw us doing magic tricks (his kink) until we broke and told him he could.

Through all of this. Support Leo. He's literally one of my best friends, he's my little brother and I hate to see him hurt like this. Send any support to Leo through either @ChannelGrayVEVO or me.

This made me really upset when I saw it. Not only did Gwen do this to further bring up reasons for people to hate me, but she also left out some important details about her and Autumn following my account back then. Remember when I drew them in the dress and them vanishing? Well, let's talk about what happened after that.

I showed both of them another magic video (a video of Doug Henning doing the Girl to Dog magic trick), and they responded to me saying how they don't want to be "turned into a furry". I took their response as that they weren't liking what I was sending them. You want to know what I did when I saw that? I stopped sending them those videos; I stopped drawing them in those outfits and tricks, and I removed them from following the account.

A thing to know about me is that I'm not good when it comes to reading a person's faux emotions. It helps me a lot when people tell me that they are feeling a certain way, and then I adjust to it. Had Gwen or Autumn not given a negative type of reaction to me, then I would have continued sending them videos and drawings, all while they continue harboring these extremely judgemental and assumption heavy thoughts about me.

Gwen doesn't even mention me removing them from my account because it would mean I knew when to stop and halt when I'm given the idea that they weren't liking what I was sending them. She preferred to paint me in the worst light possible and keep certain details away from the public instead. It also didn't help that she held what I did all those years ago over my head, as after all that happened in 2016, I figured everything was okay after that, and we wouldn't have to talk about it again. But I guess I was wrong about that.

Chapter 2: Attempting to draw Leo in a dress once (2017) and the NSFW account invite (January 2019)

In 2017, that was when me and many others first met Leo thanks to him making a plush of Ty (DigitalTy), and making a harmless ship between him and SilverKeyblade. Around that time was when I would occasionally draw more people in Snow White's dress, getting what I assumed to be positive reception. I then bring up on my vent the possibility of drawing Leo (who used to be called Bella) in Snow White's dress. This had him excited because at that point, he was a big fan of my drawings.

That was when Gwen went to me to tell me that I shouldn't be doing it, because in her mind, it would make me look like a pedophile if I went with it, and she did out of concern for me. I didn't take it very well at that moment, and I beat myself up, apologized to Leo about it, all while talking about how I should stop doing that in general all because one person told me to not do it. Life went on like normal after that, even when feeling guilty for thinking about it. If I were more sensible, I would've told Gwen that the character wasn't a kink at that moment, but to me, I didn't want to argue. I just gave in and didn't do anything.

Then, in January of 2019, I invited Leo to follow the NSFW account. Now the question here is "Why?" Well, let me explain. Back in 2018, one of the posts I saw from Leo's first suspended main Twitter account was him listing off his favorite Disney characters. One of which was Snow White. To me, I felt a sense of relief knowing that someone else in our general circle of friends also really likes Snow White, because that opinion is not all that popular of one within the Disney circles. My main reason for inviting him over was not for his age, but for similar interests at the time.

At this point, all my drawings of Snow White dresses were solely placed in the NSFW account, so I thought if Leo followed the account, then not only would he see more of those drawings he seemed to like, but to also talk about Snow White to him. I even thought about sharing magic videos to see if he would like them. Some will say that I'm lying out of my ass right now about that, but I'm being absolutely honest here. I had no mal intent when sending those videos with him.

Although the next question you could ask is "Why invite him when he's only 16 years old?" To be fair and honest, that wasn't a smart move on my part. There are no excuses on that aspect. In retrospect, I shouldn't have brought him over in the first place. But it's already happened, and I can't change history now.

Chapter 3: The NSFW moments with Leo (January - September 2019)

Around February of 2019 was when I ordered myself a Snow White costume. It wouldn't arrive until June 2019. Now some will ask "Why did you order it?" I ordered to not only show my big love for the character, but because I wanted to know what wearing a dress would feel like and if I enjoyed it. I said before, and I'll say it again: the character herself and her dress are not a kink of mine. Not only did I simply not make it very clear about it to some people, but some took it as a fetish of mine, when they never directly asked me if it was. I also didn't have any thoughts of being a transgender girl myself. I just wanted to try a dress out.

Also, the pictures I took of me wearing the dress are all gone now. I deleted all of them from my computer. On top of that, the dress, as I'm typing this segment, is planned to be given away to somebody else, meaning I don't have to try it on or have to look at it ever again.

So apparently, when I posted the first couple of pictures and a video of me trying it out, while it seemed positive to me with the likes and a few replies, according to Leo's document, some were confused and jumped to very extreme conclusions, especially regarding how I view Snow White. I wouldn't know at all that some had their concerns and issues with what I was doing until the document was posted.

The important aspect to mention here is that Leo was initially positive about me wearing it (at least I think he was). Given how at that point, he showed positive reactions towards the magic videos that I was sending him, I thought he would like it if I sent him more pictures of me wearing the dress on a routinely basis. He didn't like it and was creeped out, but he never directly told me until many months later when the damage was already done.

I also drew Leo three times total in Snow White's dress, and one time where he vanished in a magic trick (definitely among the most egregious drawings I have done), I kept sending him magic videos to see if he liked them, and then asked him if he wanted to wear Snow White's dress in real life, even going as far as encouraging him to go get one on September since October was getting closer; providing him with the same Amazon link I used to get mine. My reason in my mind was so that we could be "Snow White Buddies". …Not a smart move, and it makes me sound like a total creep.

One aspect I didn't know at the time, however, was that Leo wasn't liking what I was sending to him. He said in his document that with the magic videos, he felt that I was forcing him to have the same kink as me. With the dress, he felt objectified and others that I didn't know about at the time saw what I was doing as grooming. That part where he's a non binary transgender male? Well, he hated wearing dresses, and resented every time I either sent him a drawing of him wearing Snow White's dress, or when I brought up how he could wear it in real life. Plus, me asking him to wear the dress, and that I was "rooting for him" didn't help matters in the least bit.

An important thing to note here is that Leo and others took what I was doing and painted my actions as if I was intentionally doing all of this for my own personal gain. That I "abused Leo all the same" and sent him these videos and drawings to have some sort of sexual pleasure from him. When, in fact, Leo gave me no such indication when he was following my NSFW that he wasn't enjoying it. My intention was not to cause harm to Leo, and yet it happened without me realizing that it was.

He wrote in the Google Doc that he didn't say this to me out of fear that I would beat myself up and make him feel worse for bringing it up. Yet, he allowed himself to continue suffering until September. However, if he told me sooner that he was feeling uncomfortable with what I was sending him… I would've stopped. Seriously. I would've not sent him anymore if he just simply told me.

The only reason I kept sending him magic videos and drawings and pictures of me in the dress was that every time I did so, he would give a fake positive comment, so that I don't get any bright ideas. But wait. Wouldn't you want to let me know if what I'm doing is wrong? Why did you do this to yourself? Why did you continue harboring all of these emotions when you could've just told me sooner?

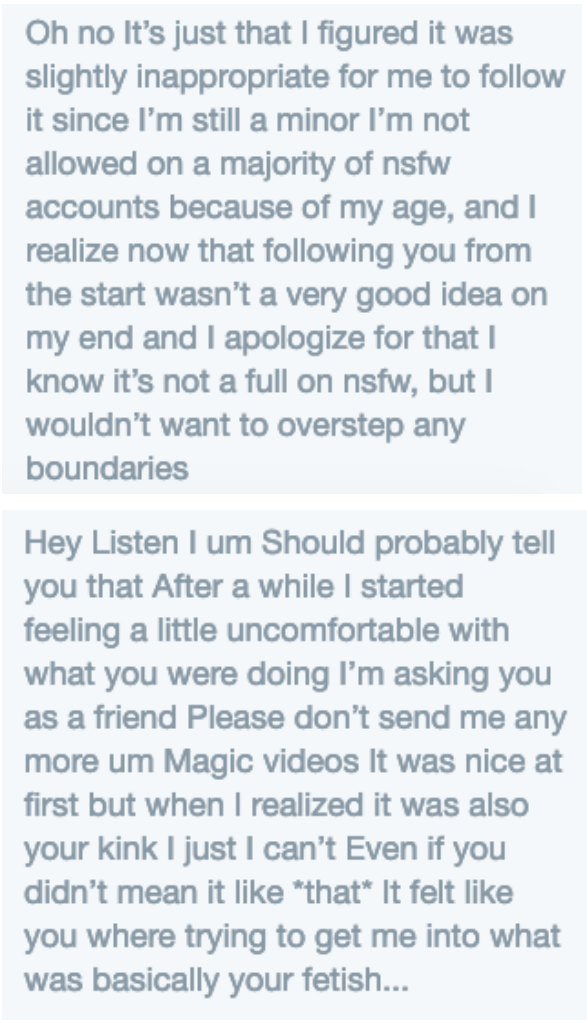
Not telling me that I'm doing something wrong is worse than simply telling me. It lets me know what mistakes I've been making, and seeing what I can do to resolve it. If I reacted badly to him telling me what I did wrong, then that would be on me. Not him.

Sometimes, what helps me a lot in situations is that I get a sense of reassurance and clarification, just so I don't get the wrong idea. I don't purposely intend on hurting others because I'm not that kind of person. If I do end up hurting someone through other means, then I apologize for what I did, and hopefully we can move on from it. However, I don't think some would ever forgive me for this, in spite of how much I try to clear my name.

Chapter 4: Me and Leo's Falling Out (September 21 - September 22, 2019)

So then on September 21, 2019, I saw on my NSFW that there was one less person following the account. I quickly checked through all the accounts following it, and I noticed right away that Leo wasn't following it anymore. I was worried, thinking that I may have done something wrong to make him unfollow the account.

So I sent him a DM on his vent (since his main Twitter had been suspended back in the summer of 2019), and he explains to me first of all that he was too young to be following a NSFW account, to which I went “fair enough” to him. He then told me about the magic videos, and how he felt that I was forcing him to have the same kink as me.



Oh no It’s just that I figured it was slightly inappropriate for me to follow it since I’m still a minor I’m not allowed on a majority of nsfw accounts because of my age, and I realize now that following you from the start wasn’t a very good idea on my end and I apologize for that I know it’s not a full on nsfw, but I wouldn’t want to overstep any boundaries
Hey Listen I um Should probably tell you that After a while I started feeling a little uncomfortable with what you were doing I’m asking you as a friend Please don’t send me any more um Magic videos It was nice at first but when I realized it was also your kink I just I can’t Even if you didn’t mean it like that It felt like you where trying to get me into what was basically your fetish...

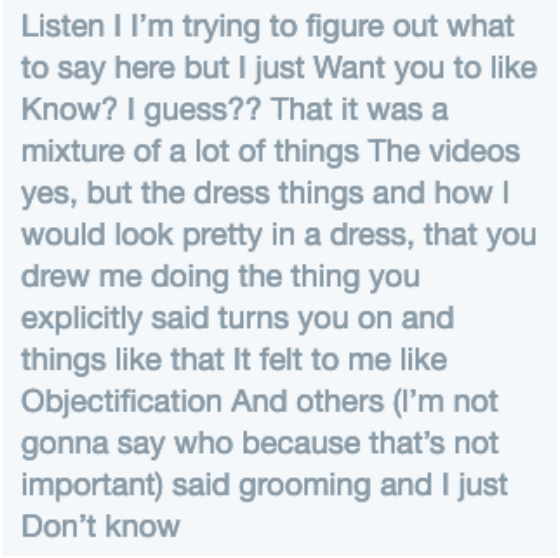
I apologize to him, told him how that wasn’t my intention, and everything seemed fine at first.

Until it wasn’t.

Shortly after that message, I started feeling guilt for what I was causing to Leo for these past 9 months. I apologized a second time for causing him much suffering. He was confused, but told me that it was fine. Then, just like that, I began to beat myself up tremendously. I started crying, and I did the following on my vent account: I would change my username to “Gone”; I would add very self deprecatory comments on my bio, I would write a tweet saying how I was going to stay away from the account for a while, and ending that same tweet with “Goodbye.”

Leo didn't take it very well, feeling guilt himself for how I reacted, and that he was the cause for me leaving my vent, while also talking about how I would talk to someone else about how much of an asshole he was. I see the tweets Leo left, and I panicked. I then began to send multiple messages to Leo, not realizing about the time zone difference between me and him, and flooding his phone with multiple notifications. I was telling him to not feel guilt for me; to not feel bad for letting me know of something I was doing was wrong; to not do anything harmful to himself, and so on.

He soon tells me that he's willing to talk with me next morning, and so I waited until the following day to message him any further. I begin by apologizing for how I acted yesterday, noting how my own emotions cloud my own thinking. After that is when he tells me that those times when I drew him in Snow White's dress, shared pictures of me in said dress, and asked if he wanted to wear one IRL felt like objectification to him, and that others he didn't want to name compared my actions to "grooming" (the act of sexual pleasure adults do to minors).



Listen I I'm trying to figure out what to say here but I just Want you to like Know? I guess?? That it was a mixture of a lot of things The videos yes, but the dress things and how I would look pretty in a dress, that you drew me doing the thing you explicitly said turns you on and things like that It felt to me like Objectification And others (I'm not gonna say who because that's not important) said grooming and I just Don't know

I also apologized for that, while at the time I viewed what I did as grooming (when it really wasn't). I tell him that I won't send him any of those ever again, and as I put it, I ask him if "there's anything I could do to make things better, besides not grooming him", which is not something to say if you don't want to be seen as a pedophile. This is when he would flat out lie to my face.

He tells me that while he doesn't want to assume my intentions were bad, it would be better if we "took a break from each other". I took what he said to heart, and we "agreed" to it. Well, I certainly did. We would unfollow each other's vents, and at that point, while I still felt sad that I hurt Leo, at least in my mind I thought that, over time, things would go back to normal, and I'd just not do those things ever again.

It's a lot more complicated than that.

See, back when I was beating myself up and I flooded his phone with notifications, that was the straw that broke the camel's back to him. He was okay with the first apology I gave him, but after what happened, he didn't want to forgive me anymore, and that I basically deserve no such mercy from him. I messed up royally by beating myself up and frantically sending him DMs when he was trying to calm down and rest.

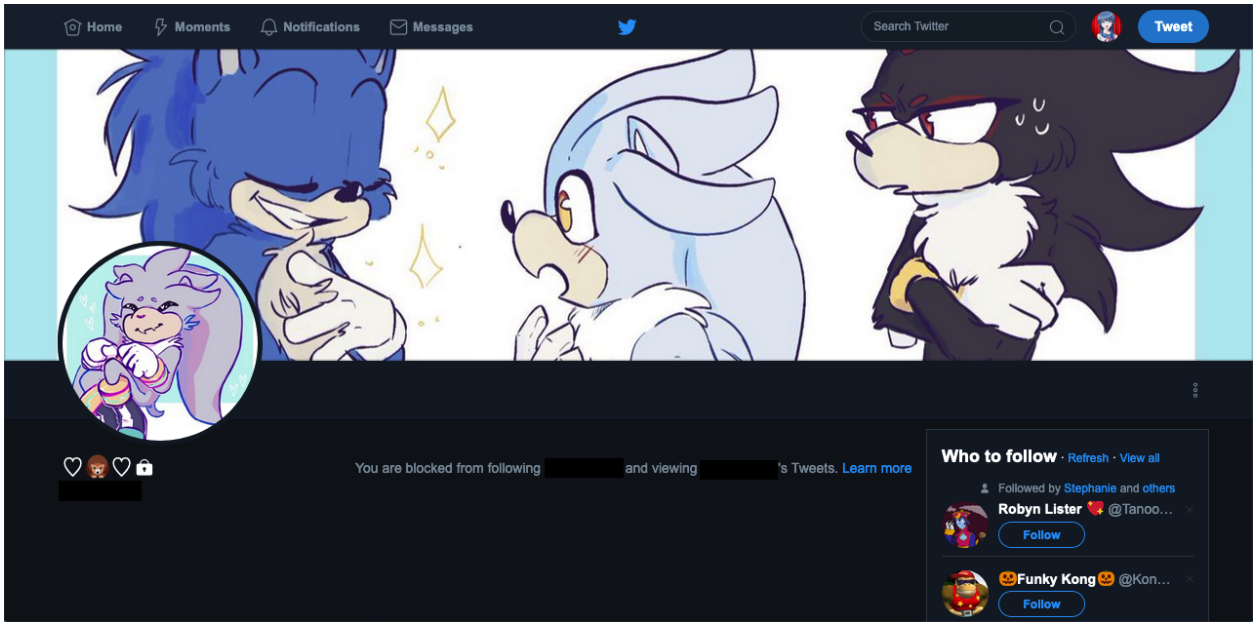
He viewed my actions as if I were trying to gain sympathy from him, when I told him that it was my own emotions clouding my thoughts. Emotions can make us do some irrational and stupid decisions, hence why I didn't remember about the time zones when I brought several messages to him. No one is able to think with logic all the time. It's impossible. Some will say that that is no excuse; but let me ask you this. Could you think of a better reason that doesn't involve me intentionally making Leo feel worse? I'd like to know that.

Chapter 5: The Start of the Cutoffs (September 21 - October 5 2019)

Back on September 21st, I started to message Porkate about the situation. I mainly did it with him because I felt I could trust him. I shared with him what happened after the initial outburst with the magic videos, and he initially was helpful in listening to what I had to say (although he doesn't stand by some messages he sent me, such as how it all was a misunderstanding). Leo took issue that I did that, because according to his own words, "it wasn't mine to share". So I have to think that I should have no one to talk to for support, and Leo gets all of it, even though at the time, I felt that I was friends with many of these people. Did I understand how big of a problem it was at that moment? No. But that doesn't mean I can't talk about how I'm feeling to someone. Clearly Leo felt that it was his right to share his side to all of his friends, but I'm not able to one bit; which in retrospect is really unfair.

To bring this up now, Leo would share what happened between him and I to three individuals: Gwen, Charlie and Donnie. With Gwen in particular, on the same day Leo told me what I was doing, she would kick me from not only her server, but also her vent account. I tend to notice really quickly whenever I'm either not in a specific server or when I have one less follower. I pieced together that Gwen didn't like that I beat myself up and guilted Leo in the process, so she kicked me from her vent as a result. Gwen also played an important part in spreading falsities about me to others, particularly about what happened in 2016.

So after me and Leo stopped talking, life went on for me, albeit with a big dose of anxiety. I chose not to enter any calls out of the fear of possibly breaking down and feeling worse because of it. I would do my usual activities, and attempt to watch some shows that I haven't gotten back to for a while. On September 25, out of pure curiosity, I checked Leo's vent. That is when I noticed that he blocked me on my main, my art account, my vent, and my NSFW (username from Leo's vent is censored for the sake of privacy).



This hit me really hard. It told me a whole different story than what Leo told me. He didn't want to take a break from me. He wanted nothing to do with me after what happened. I was emotionally hurt. Because of that, I closed my NSFW account out of the idea that he'd feel better if he didn't have to see it anymore. I'd also tell my mom what was going on some time after I found out that day.

Then on September 27, I saw that Rae Mills unfollowed my vent, which made me incredibly anxious and think that I may have done something wrong. On that day, when I arrived at my summer home, my dad wasn't there to keep me company, and I was scared to join a call with anybody; so for that whole night, I was completely lonely. I message Porkate about what happened with Rae, and he tells me that he would talk to her about it. At 11pm, Porkate sends me this message:

Hey uh, I can't really continue this conversation since I gotta sleep for work but me and Rae talked about what was going on. Since she was already aware I decided to confront her about it. After the whole thing in your vent we encountered a recurring issue that you use your vent for self deprecation after a mishap and use it as a way to dodge responsibility and what you did was a little too big to just be ignored. What you did on your vent can come off as emotionality manipulative especially given the seriousness of what you did. What we would suggest is to delete your vent entirely as it's extremely unhealthy to go to it to self deprecate. Another thing that's best to do is to remove yourself from Discount Smash Hall and devote some time to yourself or hang out in other chats like your movie night chat. We briefly mentioned it to Fyro and he agreed on it (since he's in charge of the chat). This issue will stay behind closed doors (since there's no reason to really tell them since it's not really their business). I can't speak for everyone else but I still see you as a friend, however this would be the best course of action as we really want to see these things fixed and not cause problems later on. I'm sorry this seems sudden but I do wish you the best.
Message @Porkate42

To summarize it, Rae unfollowed my vent because whenever I self deprecated, I used it as a way to dodge responsibility and it could also come across as emotionally manipulative, especially with how big the situation really was. Porkate, Rae, Fyro and Addi (partially) would then suggest me to do two things: to delete my vent and leave Discount Smash Hall (Fyro and Rae's DM Group where we played Smash Bros) so that I can have "more time to myself" or in other chats. He promised that they would keep it behind closed doors (which would literally be broken the week after), and that it was a decision that was "best for me".

I did what they asked, and for that time, I mostly dedicated time to myself, with only one instance where I joined a movie night on October 3rd. I took what they said to heart. Porkate would also tell me that some didn't necessarily "hate" me, so I assumed that they meant well with what they asked me to do. That didn't last for long.

The following day, I learned that Donnie unfollowed me on Twitter and removed me as a friend on Discord. On October 3rd, I learned that Rachael not only kicked me from her servers and remove me as a friend on Discord, but also blocked me on Twitter.

She was the same person that gave me suggestions on what would be "best for me", for the record. When she blocked me, I felt more and more cut off from the people I thought were my friends. It became clear to me that I had no chance of ever coming back to DHS (or any server she or her friends were in). When I found out, I cried and my anxiety felt worse. In my mind, they didn't want me to get better. They simply wanted me gone.

I was tipped off by Porkate when I messaged him a few days before Rae blocked me about how they would like it if I wasn't around, when he soon told me this.

I think it be best to not be around those groups anymore, I have a feeling they may not forgive you on this. Given the circumstances. It's really something they wouldnt easily forgive.

Here were more people that blocked me leading to the public posting of Leo's document, including Gwen herself. There could've been more that I wouldn't have known about, but these were the ones I did find out about.

Within the span of two and a half weeks, I began losing so many of my former friends. I felt scared that things were becoming worse and worse. From what I can get from this, Leo was slowly telling some people what happened from his own viewpoint, and they decided right then and there to cut all connections with me.

They chose to not confront me at all or ask for my perspective, even if things could've been clarified with them about my own intentions on the matter. By doing this to me, it made me mentally weak. The fear of losing all of my friends felt more and more certain. Those weeks alone have made things worse for me. I would tell my dad about the situation on October 3rd.

Chapter 6: Leo's Document and More (October 6, 2019)

Let's get back to one thing Porkate told me before when he suggested that I delete my vent and leave DSH. He told me that the situation would be kept behind closed doors, which meant that it wouldn't be made public in any way. However, given how a good amount of my former friends were beginning to cut me off throughout those weeks, it made me worried that they would bring it all publically.

And on October 6, 2019, it happened. Charlie (@ChannelGrayVEVO) would post Leo's 36 page long Google Document about how I was a sexual predator and how I targeted Leo intentionally for his age. Even though Charlie's Twitter was deactivated when writing this part, I still have screenshots of their thread in question.

George Raccoon is a creep who targeted a minor.
Stay far the fuck away from him.

He didn't do anything outside of the law, so we can't have him turn himself in as a pedophile. He didn't solicit or send nudes.
But he made his intentions remarkably clear, and he took advantage of Leo all the same.

Second of all, seek chemical castration as soon as possible.

This of course had people in the public turn their back on me, with various messages like these prompting up.

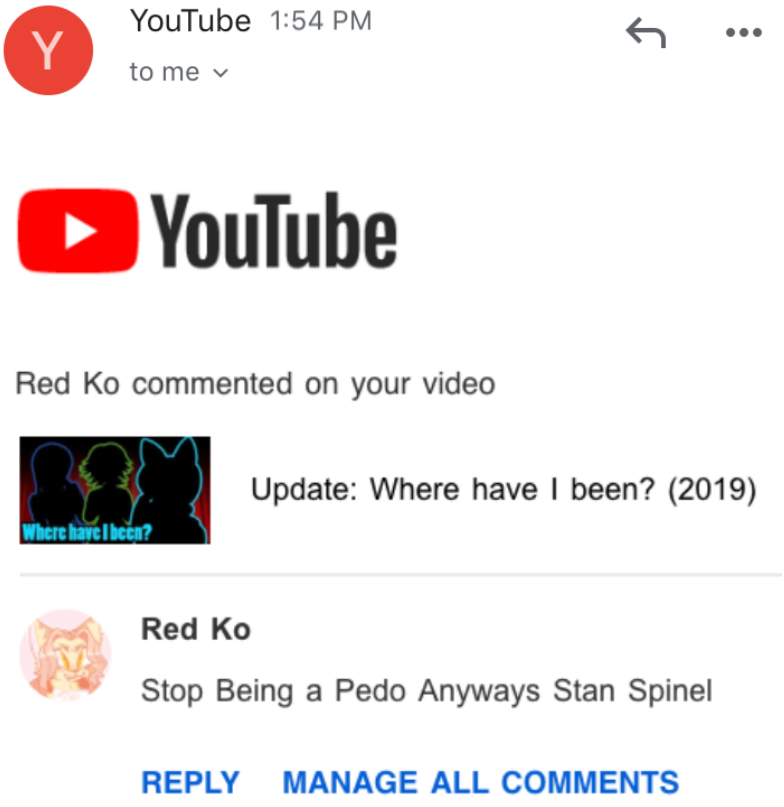
Before I begin to focus on what I read about the document itself, I would like to mention how I reacted to all of the backlash. Simply put, I didn't take it very well, and my anxiety was in an extremely bad position when it happened.

I locked my own account out of this idea in my head where they would like it if they didn't have to see what I had to say anymore. However, some took that in different directions. Some saw it as a lack of defense on my part. Some saw it as incredibly incriminating. Some would even mention how they would want to hear from my side.

I would also attempt to intentionally diminish my own follower count by blocking and unblocking multiple people, thinking that if I did so and I attempted to defend myself, I would have no ground/follower count to stand on. Some looked at it as if I didn't want to hear what they had to say. And some like Adri saw it as me losing every follower of mine because everyone unfollowed on their own fruition.

Plus Adri would leave this comment on my 2019 Update video.



For those who wonder what happened to my Youtube account and both of my public Twitter accounts, I will talk about that later.

I would also leave my final edit on the Commentary Community Wiki that I had created, where I write how I was not proud at the situation I got myself into, and my own actions.

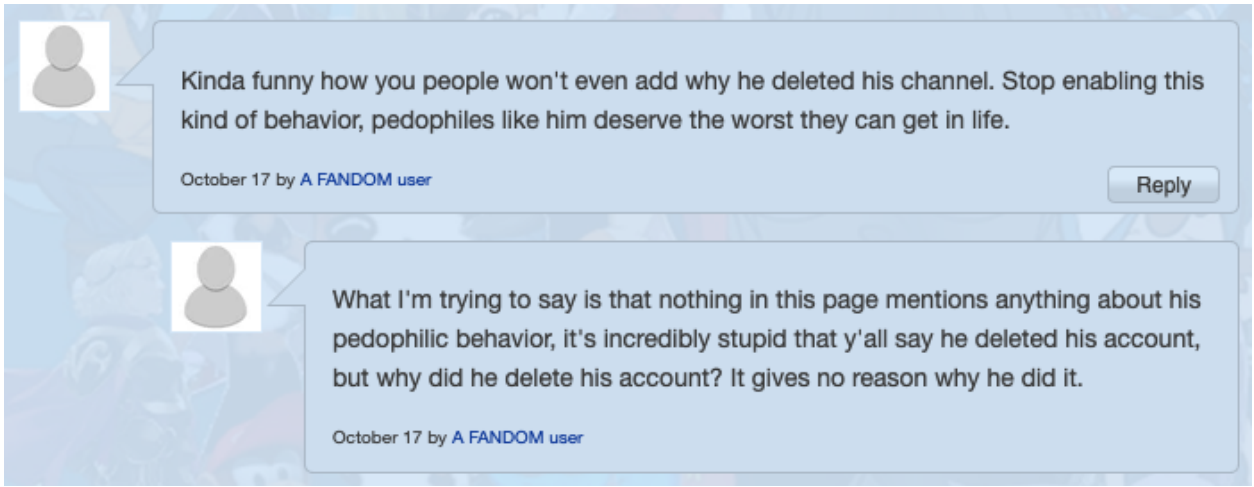
Hey guys, it's me, George Raccoon from YouTube. I have started a nice little wiki here with a clean slate. I do commentaries and artwork. I'm also a former admin of the CommentaryDB Wikia.
Since October 6, I am no longer looking after this wiki. I am not proud of myself for this whole situation I've gotten myself into, and I deserve nothing else but a leave at many people's requests. Fling mud at me all you want.

Some probably took this as me admitting that the document is 100% correct, but honestly, what I said sounds too ambiguous to mean much of anything. Plus it would mean more heavy assumptions towards me. In fact, some were expecting me to censor my own page and lock my wiki page, when I ended up doing neither. Why bother pretending like the document doesn't exist? I do want to make it clear that I no longer stand with the "Fling mud at me" comment. I only said that because I wanted to be left alone and not start a fight.

In response to the controversy, some like Discount would add to my page the category of Pedophile commentators, and Rachael adding a link to Leo's document, along with some harsh comments to the wiki page itself.

In October of 2019, someone known Leo wrote a 36-page document, alleging George Racoon for being a child predator.



Kinda funny how you people won't even add why he deleted his channel. Stop enabling this kind of behavior, pedophiles like him deserve the worst they can get in life.
October 17 by A FANDOM user

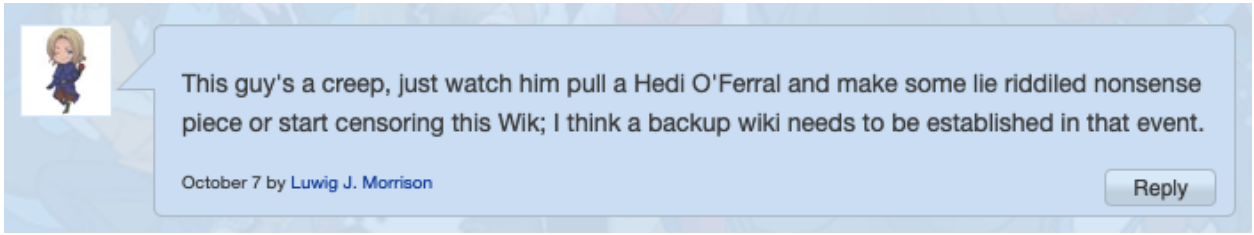
What I'm trying to say is that nothing in this page mentions anything about his pedophilic behavior, it's incredibly stupid that y'all say he deleted his account, but why did he delete his account? It gives no reason why he did it.
October 17 by A FANDOM user



This guy's a creep, just watch him pull a Hedi O'Ferral and make some lie riddiled nonsense piece or start censoring this Wik; I think a backup wiki needs to be established in that event.

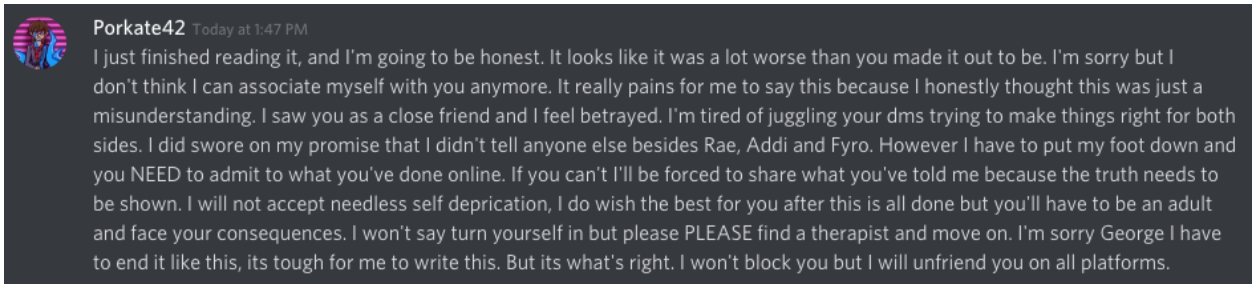
There are some other things I need to mention. I messaged Porkate about how I was afraid that the promise that it wouldn't be brought to the public would be broken, and some time later, after he read Leo's document, he tells me off and disassociated with me with this message. Said message he sent me he never shared with the public.



Porkate42 Today at 1:47 PM
I just finished reading it, and I'm going to be honest. It looks like it was a lot worse than you made it out to be. I'm sorry but I don't think I can associate myself with you anymore. It really pains for me to say this because I honestly thought this was just a misunderstanding. I saw you as a close friend and I feel betrayed. I'm tired of juggling your dms trying to make things right for both sides. I did swore on my promise that I didn't tell anyone else besides Rae, Addi and Fyro. However I have to put my foot down and you NEED to admit to what you've done online. If you can't I'll be forced to share what you've told me because the truth needs to be shown. I will not accept needless self deprication, I do wish the best for you after this is all done but you'll have to be an adult and face your consequences. I won't say turn yourself in but please PLEASE find a therapist and move on. I'm sorry George I have to end it like this, its tough for me to write this. But its what's right. I won't block you but I will unfriend you on all platforms.

He would share the messages we had to the public as the “Just in case George files” (which I linked at the top of this document) when I didn’t talk publicly at all at that point. Even though he told me off with this message, he still wished me the best with his thread.

Although it doesn't help when Gwen puts words into my mouth when I say that I rarely talked to Leo about him wearing the dress, just so that she can make me look as shitty as possible.

Brooke still wanted me to get better, even if she saw me as a pedophile and mentioned that saying that was controversial for her to say.

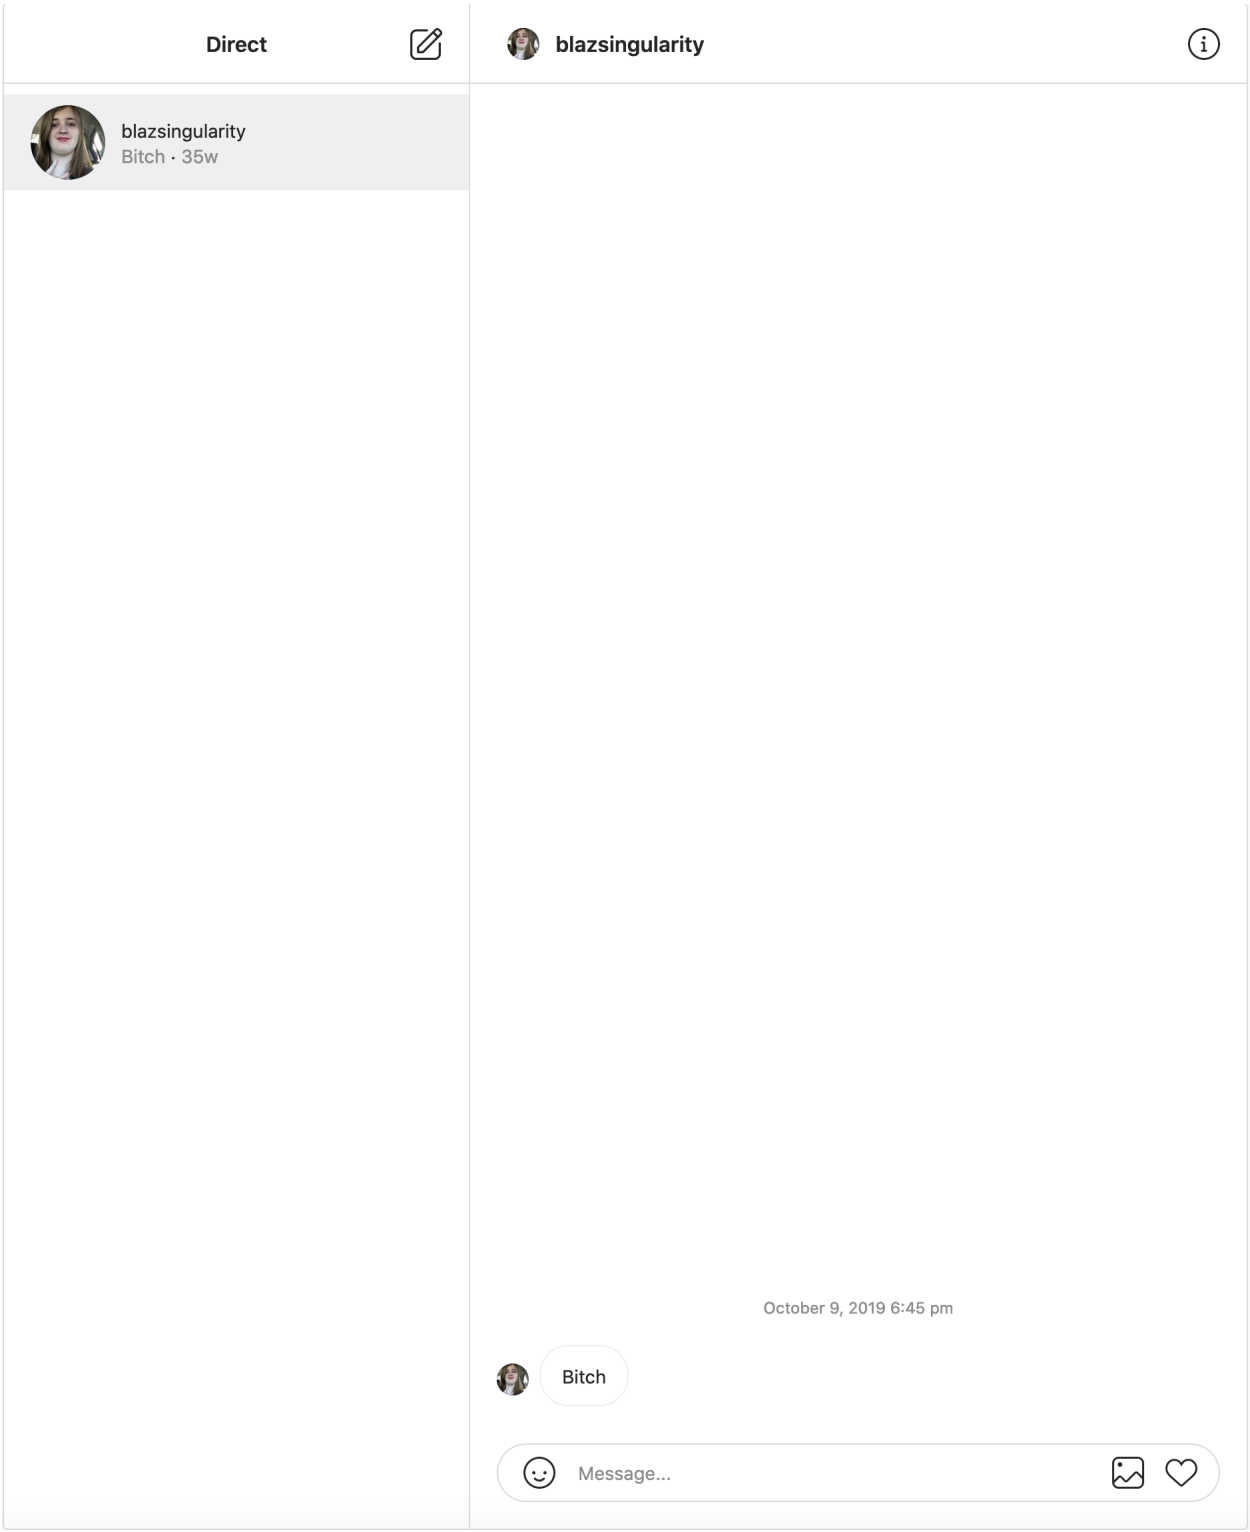
Or AshSingularity, who sent this message to my now abandoned Instagram a few days after Leo's document was posted.



Now if I can talk about Leo's document itself… I've only read some of it. Why only some and not all of it, you may ask? Well, let me ask you a question. Would you feel comfortable reading an entire Google Doc talking about how you're absolute scum or a child groomer? I wouldn't think so. But what I have read I have brought up throughout this document in the previous chapters, as there was a lot to talk about with what he said.

But to go back to something I brought up before, when I learned that he was lying to my face about how he felt for 9 months, and lie to me about taking a break from each other, I felt hurt. With the latter, I took that to heart when it happened. However, it was clear that Leo didn't want to talk with me anymore, and instead chose to lie to my face, giving me false hope that things could turn out for the better later on.

As for the former, like I said before, it didn't make any sense to me that he would keep how he felt from me. He said in the document that his reason for telling me was because he was afraid of my own reaction, predicting that I would beat myself up if he were to tell me, and instead chose to continue being hurt when it would've helped him out much better if he just simply told me. In my mind, not telling me is worse than simply telling me, cause within those 9 months, I thought that when I was sharing magic videos, drawings of Leo in Snow White's dress, pictures of myself wearing the dress, and asking him if he wanted to wear one himself, nothing seemed to be wrong.

I'm somehow supposed to read Leo's mind when it came to what bothered him, but I can't read minds. Some will most likely say that what I'm about to bring up isn't an excuse for me, but as I said way back at the start of this document, I have high functioning autism. Sometimes, I can't read how a person is feeling unless they tell me directly. When Leo was sending me those positive responses, I wouldn't think that something was wrong. Plus, if Leo told me that he wasn't liking what I was sending, I would've stopped. I'm serious on that one. I don't go out of my way to intentionally hurt friends of mine, and whatever harm I caused to Leo was unintentional and without any sort of malice.

Leo said in the beginning that he still didn't want to hurt me or humiliate me, when unfortunately, I've been hurt since we stopped talking for various other reasons, and I've been humiliated and shunned since Charlie shared the 36 page Google Doc he wrote about me. Done by several people that were in the Commentary Community, and a lot of which used to be my own friends. I felt something else when Leo shared the document. I felt the sense of destroying any chance of redemption or feeling safe on the internet/anywhere else. Every time I attempted to read the Google Doc Leo created, I felt extremely anxious. I felt cornered, and not in the way you think. I felt that people would possibly dogpile me, or even go for my own details so that they can continue chasing me. I felt scared. Worried. Depressed. Anxious. Any negative emotion that doesn't have to do with anger.

The bits I was able to read painted a whole different picture to me. A one sided, biased, black & white picture, where I'm seen as a sexual predator and child groomer, and Leo as a defenseless and poorly treated victim. Leo's perspective is not the whole story, as it is clear to me that he solely viewed the situation primarily with his own emotions. It doesn't help that the way it was written feels like it wants to make you feel bad for Leo, like it wants to tug at your heart strings for him. His intent was very clear when he ultimately chose to make this entire situation public, making his early comment about he didn't want to cause harm to me means something completely different. He wanted to tear me down and make me lose everything I had on the internet because I made him feel awful for 9 months without realizing it, all while twisting all the context to his own favor to make me look as terrible as possible.

This one specific bit near the end of Leo's document was indicative to me at how emotionally driven it was:

"…approached the subject of grooming with the mundanity of a mistake."

He wanted to view the actions I caused to be the worst things imaginable because of how he felt in those months, and held it against me, when he never told me once or gave any indication during the time he was following the NSFW account that he had any sort of issue with it. He also saw the opportunity to cut all ties with me when I acted with my own emotions after I first apologized for the magic videos. Because I made him panic, and I made it worse for him by flooding his DMs in panic, that made him justified in his biased narrative.

A narrative that people took as the absolute truth. A narrative that people were proud of him to have posted publicly. They were proud of Leo for having ran a guy off of the internet, losing all his friends, his safety, his online socialization, and any sense of redemption.

It took me a lot of reflecting on what happened for me to fully understand what I ultimately did wrong. I shouldn't have invited a minor (let alone three) to follow a NSFW account. I shouldn't have been so irresponsible with a NSFW account. I shouldn't have reacted so poorly after apologizing and beating myself up to avoid my responsibility and accidentally making Leo feel guilt. I should've taken other people's emotions and reactions into account. I should've kept my intimate feelings to myself. I should've been clear and honest about what I was sending, and what my intent was overall. I shouldn't have went too far with things I liked when sending (the Snow White dress in general and magic videos). And I definitely shouldn't have encouraged or asked Leo to wear a dress in real life. These are aspects and things I needed to learn the hard way so that I don't ever repeat those mistakes again.

Just to make this abundantly clear. I am not saying or implying I did nothing wrong. I most certainly did. I made Leo feel uncomfortable and hurt for 9 months, I made him feel guilty when I beat myself up, I flooded his Twitter DMs when he was trying to sleep, and some of the actions I did do indeed make me look much worse (drawing him and others vanishing, some of my sentences sound really creepy [I'm rooting for you!] [Is there anything I can do to make things better, besides not grooming you?], and all the ones I listed previously).

However, I am saying that Leo's document skewed everything in his favor, and a lot of his supporters and defenders never wanted to give me a chance to explain myself. They instead took what Leo said to heart, as the end all be all, and made their decision to cut all ties with me, along with joining in on the smear campaign on me. It didn't help that some of them don't even want to hear what I have to say because the Google Document has "clear evidence", and that they would never want to hear a "pedophile's" side of the story.

Plus, it is also possible that many others would refuse to hear what I have to say because I ended up hurting Leo for a long period of time, meaning that if I were to say anything, they would shrug it off and give me no such ground to stand on. It was so one sided that it wasn't funny. It was disgusting. They set me up for failure before it all was made public.

You want to know what is also disgusting? Comparing my situation to Leo to that of an actual pedophile. Yes. I'm dead serious about that. Donnie would say that the situation he had with former countdown maker ObsidiusFan (Julian) is similar to me and Leo; which is unbelievably baffling to me.

What Julian did to Donnie was more culpatory than what I did. For context sake, he gatekeeped Donnie from becoming a guy for his own sexual pleasure; he forced him to do sexual roleplay when Donnie was 15 to 16 years old at the time, and he also mentioned how his “moans were hot” and called him a slut.

This happened all the way back in 2015 when I was 15-16. He was at least 19. One might ask why I'm saying this now, and it's because I didn't come to terms with what happened until very recently and I didn't want to admit it was that bad.

He would ask me to roleplay with him, and I thought that it was okay at first. But I shouldn't have, because it started when I was 15, and he was even aware of this fact. (I gathered this evidence from SkypeLogView since the new Skype update didn't allow me to view older chats)

From that original thread, Donnie would mention how Julian did tell Donnie that he could say no if he wanted to, and that he ultimately targeted a minor with his actions.

Donnie @Donnimation · Jan 28
Yes, he did tell me I could say "no", but everything else contradicted that since he'd constantly vent to me about him feeling alone, he'd tell me how much it'd mean to him that we'd do that shit together.

Not like whether I could have said "no" or not matters, because he targeted a 15-16 year old. A 15-16 year old that didn't understand how to defend himself. He knew I didn't know how to defend myself because he'd tell me to stand up for myself against other people.

And there's also this:
There was a time in mid 2015 where I came to him about me not knowing if I was trans or not. He was saying I wasn't trans, I wouldn't be cute as a boy anymore, and such, thus gatekeeping me.

He'd also consistently tell me I wasn't that boyish and that he had a preference for feminine women. This makes it clear that he wanted me to stay a girl to satisfy his predatory behavior.

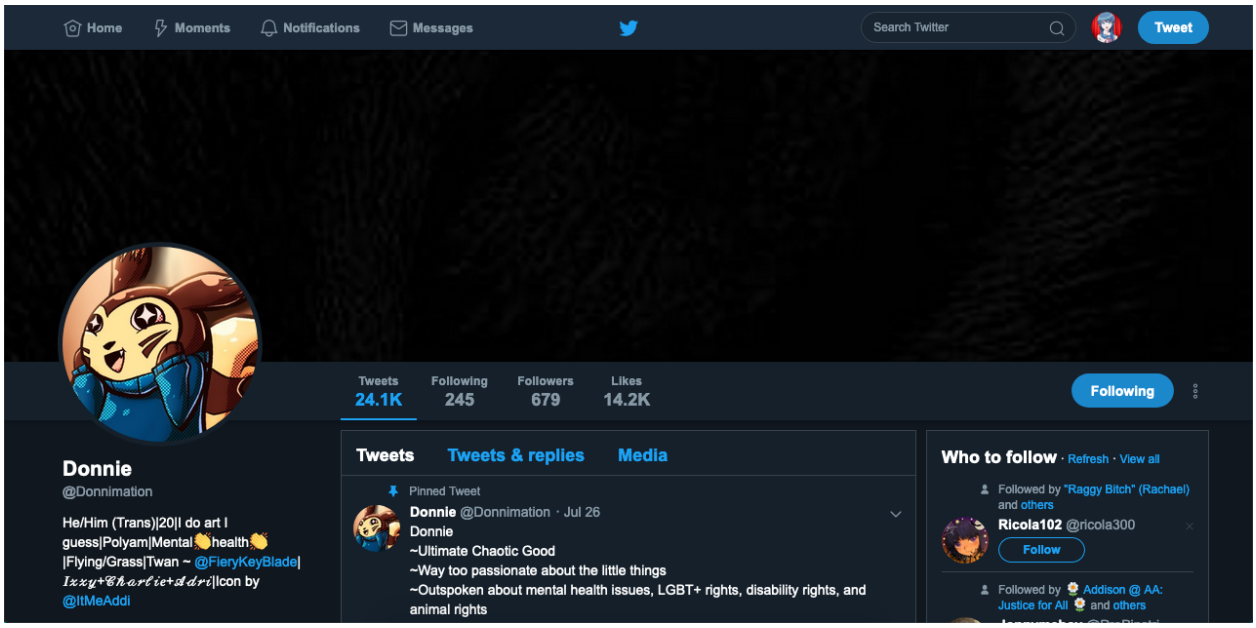
However, the comparison with me and Julian is, like I said before, incredibly baffling. Did Julian ever apologize or felt remorse for his actions? Did he feel any sort of guilt for what he had caused to Donnie? As far as I know, he did none of those things. Plus, Julian did far worse offenses than I ultimately caused. He did everything in his situation intentionally, while I was unaware of how much I was affecting Leo until it was too late.

Donnie is in the belief that I intentionally “targeted Leo” because he is a minor, when all he based that off of was just Leo’s viewpoint. Donnie never once confronted me, and chose to cut ties with me. Granted, he didn’t outright block me, but he removed me as a friend on Discord and unfollowed my main Twitter (this and many other screenshots were taken before I deleted my Twitter).



Weirdly enough, even though Donnie didn’t like me as a friend anymore, he still stayed in my personal Discord server (which is mostly inactive, for the record) and other chats we were both in. It made no sense in my mind. I mean, it’s possible that Donnie would have forgotten he was in it in the case of my server, but the other chat we shared was the movie chat, where people chatted there on a more frequent basis. Every time I checked there, I would feel anxious seeing Donnie’s icon on the member list.

Don’t think I forgot some of the things Charlie said during that thread they made. Aside from posting Leo’s document for him, they would say two specific sentences that upset me a lot.

“But he made his intentions remarkably clear, and he took advantage of Leo all the same.”

The first sentence offended me because it was clear that with how they treated me in this entire situation, they never once confronted me at any point, and instead took the easy way out by instantly believing everything Leo said. This made me come to terms that the previous friendship I had with these people was surface level at best, and that we were more or less acquaintances/associates. I don't like being instantly judged without being given any chance to explain myself, and that's exactly what they did. It is not healthy to claim you know exactly what their intentions were when you did nothing to understand the situation.

The second sentence is a lot more messed up. They most likely said that because "I did the same thing to Autumn and Gwen", but again, I certainly didn't get that right away because Gwen blocked me. I looked up what chemical chemistration even was, and I learned that it's a treatment done to actual sexual predators who committed repeat offenses after they were already put in jail. They put me in the same ballpark as not only Julian, but also legitimate criminals. It doesn't help either that the side effects that would happen are anything but pleasant. I would become fatter, my mood would rapidly change, my bones would become thinner, and I would feel much worse. But to them, they would want me to do that because "at least I'm not targeting minors anymore if I did that."

Your thread, Charlie, encapsulates everything I don't like about you as a person. You view the worst out of a person whom you had issues with; you assume every little thing I did over past experiences; you put them into a corner like I'm the kid in school with a dunce cap; and you are willing to rip a person apart in such a terrible way because they "hurt a close friend of yours". Given how you and many others wanted the worst to happen to me, I feel no regret in saying that you've hurt me a lot and want nothing to do with you.

As for why I haven't defended myself sooner… well, when the document happened, I was not in the best spirit to do such a thing. After all the previous weeks where people cut me off and were planning my demise, how can I even say anything without mentally collapsing? We can't all just easily write a defense when we are immediately accused. This document took me at least two months to write in its entirety. Plus I only wrote on it when I was feeling ready to write more.

Now all of this took a heavy toll on my mental state. Everything was falling apart for me, and my whole reputation online got smeared by Leo and his friends/defenders. I lost all that I cherished on the internet. But thankfully for me, there were some people who were there for me when it was my darkest hour online. Who were these people I'm referring to?

My family.

On October 6, after Leo's document was posted publicly, I told my mom, my dad, as well as my sister about what was going on at that moment, and they have been supportive in making sure that I am safe and mentally fine. On that day, I went to San Diego with my dad to try to get my mind off of it. Keyword being try. After I came back home, my mom gave me a helpful suggestion so that people don't attempt to reach me further. It was for me to delete my main Twitter, my art Twitter, my YouTube channel, and eventually, my deviantArt.

I even had an emergency visit to my doctor to be prescribed medicine that would help alleviate my anxiety. For these past few months, I've been with my family and staying away from everyone that attempted to harm me mentally. At a lot of times, I kept thinking about how I was mistreated by my former friends, or should I say, associates. I rambled to myself sometimes whenever I couldn't keep these negative thoughts to myself, and other times, I would talk to my psychologist about it.

I should mention that the only family member of mine that read Leo's Google Doc to some capacity was my sister, who couldn't finish it because, as she told me, it was repetitive, and was confused with the messages he was sending me during the time when he followed the NSFW account. Plus I'm definitely sure that she wouldn't want to continue reading something that said her brother was a sexual predator.

Honestly, his tweet from Seahawk is the only one that is fully accurate as to what I actually did when the drama unfolded.

I don't think he's... irredeemable per se, but I want him to understand both the magnitude of his fuck-ups and that redemption will not come right away.
Stay off the limelight for a while, and learn what you can in the process. That'd be my advice to him.

Chapter 7: Conclusion (Now)

I have known many of these people for 4 years, and when I first met them in 2015, I felt a sense of comfort. The comfort of having friends that I thought wouldn't be gone after a period of time, like school. However, after this, they were right in saying that I have no chance in hanging out with them ever again. With the way that they all treated me, why should I hang out with people that are so willing to see someone's reputation burn?

Gwen says that they've known me well for that time, when ultimately, they don't know me personally very well. If they actually took the time to know, and I DO mean know, they'd learn that I don't go out of my way to intentionally cause harm to someone. If I ended up hurting a person, then it would be unintentional, and I would apologize immediately afterwards. I certainly did mess up in some areas that I've already talked about, but I do not think I deserve this awful treatment. I also disagree with Porkate saying how I should move on from this, when it is impossible for me to do so. How can I move on from everyone turning against me and tossed into the same camp as legitimate pedophiles?

Plus if they claim to know how I am, how come they never approached me about it directly? How come they never bothered to see both sides? I'll tell you. Because it would be easier for them to not even bother with me. They couldn't care much about me, and chose Leo's side instantly because to them, that's a person that they care immensely about, while I wasn't. They viewed me like every other pedophile they've seen before, and think that what was "best for me" is that I don't have any sort of support, I deserve to be given chemical castration, and that I admit that everything they said to be true. If it weren't for my family and my psychologist, I would most likely be depressed and attempt stupid things all the time.

Leo has shown me how he acts, and I believe that because of situations like this one, he will never grow or improve as a person. I hurt him, so therefore, according to Leo, I deserve to lose my safety on the internet, my former friends, my reputation, and any sort of internet interaction. He and his defenders never gave me a single chance, and didn't want to give me one in the first place. In the same interaction we last had, he told me that he doesn't want to assume that my intention was bad. Which then was broken the moment he decided to make a 36 page long document entailing why I'm a horrible person. He said he didn't want to hurt or humiliate me within the first few paragraphs, yet he chose to have his document be made public and shared by everyone, which in turn hurt me mentally, humiliated me and tainted my online presence forever. He ruined my entire internet life in one fell swoop, and has affected any bit of motivation where I could potentially interact with people inside or outside the internet. The chances for people to leave me feel a lot likelier to happen thanks to what Leo did.

I even felt hesitant to go to any kind of convention (like MomoCon) because I was unsure if they were going to do something to me like report me to the Atlanta Police and get me arrested (even if Charlie claimed that they couldn't do so) or to report me to the people in MomoCon so that I could no longer attend the convention. Stuff like this makes me anxious about going anywhere super public, all because of Leo and his friend group. Given the fact that they were so quick to shun me, it wouldn't be surprising to me if they wanted me not only gone from their friend circle, but also dead. I'm aware that thought is extreme, but these are the types of thoughts that Leo and the others made me keep thinking about long after the situation came to the public.

I agree to not talk to Leo simply on the fact that I do not trust him at all anymore. I don't view him as a good person, and the others that chose to join in on this smear campaign are just as guilty if you ask me. He isn't a bad person because he told me what I was doing was harmful to him. He is a bad person because he assumed every little thing I did in the worst way imaginable, and destroyed someone's reputation and all of his online friendships simply because they made him feel bad. Here is a list of all the bullying tactics used on me by Leo and his supporters:

- Character assasination

- Defamation
- Smear campaign
- False accusations
- Blacklisting
- Gaslighting
- Gossip
- Humiliation
- Isolation
- Personal attacks
- Psychological Abuse
- Social exclusion
- Setting up to fail
- Cyberbullying
- Mobbing

I can't be angry at everyone who believed Leo's words and weren't directly involved, as some like Akriloth were only reacting to what they just saw and weren't closely involved. However, the people I have lost my trust and respect from were specifically Leo, Gwen, Charlie, and Rachael. Those four were the ones who ended up hurting me the most in this entire mess, alongside those that were closer to Leo.

For those wondering, I won't be returning to making videos, or posting any of my drawings online. My mom has already given away the Snow White dress as I type this part, and I haven't worn it since me and Leo's falling out. I've been keeping the magic videos to myself, and I will never draw someone else's OC in Snow White's dress ever again. I won't even be making a NSFW account, nor will I be giving away my hidden Twitter account that I used to take the screenshots.

To reiterate what I said before, I messed up in a lot of areas. I learned that I should've never shared my NSFW account with minors; that I should've been more responsible for a NSFW account in the first place; that I keep my intimate feelings to myself; that I need to make everything absolutely clear so that no one would assume my actions; that I shouldn't beat myself up so that I don't end up manipulating people and having more responsibility for my actions; and so on. I don't want to view myself as a saint. I've never done so to begin with. After how many people treated Leo as this perfect individual who were proud that he victimized his own position so that people could crucify me, I only want to see myself as a person who simply fucked up, and has to learn what he did wrong. Not a person that is given heavy allegations and ran from the internet for my fuck ups. I hold myself accountable for all of the actual wrong things I have done; not for being accused of something I never truly did.

Now, it is very likely that he and all of his friends won't ever forgive me because of what happened. I hate that I have to make a heavy assumption, but I'm expecting them, especially Leo, to block me immediately the moment I say anything in public, and refuse to listen to a single word I say that isn't "everything Leo said in his document is 100% true and I am a sexual predator". They might also think/say I'm lying about everything I have said here, when they didn't even bother asking me to begin with and judge me unfairly. If they are quick to make assumptions of my character, then I should be able to as well. Knowing now that Leo has since returned to public Twitter in November, I don't want him to throw away everything I have said here, because if he did, it would ultimately show that he isn't willing to change or improve for the better, nor would he be wanting to grow. The moment they block me and refuse to listen to a single word I'm saying is when my point is fully proven. Now it is possible for them to listen to what I have to say, but it is also possible that they won't. No one really knows what would happen until it actually happens.

To make this clear, victims shouldn't feel hesitant in sharing what happened to them. If someone did something horrible, and they made them keep it a secret from everyone else because of how people would view them, then it's fine to bring it to light. With the situation between me and Leo, however, while I did some wrong things between us, what I did is not comparable to actual pedophiles, and everyone who sided with Leo only did so because he was a friend they cared about more. Sometimes, people may get falsely accused of things that either never happened to begin with, were not as serious as the accuser makes it out to be, or only did so because they have a more significant following within their friend circles than the one being accused.

I'm fully aware that I affected Leo negatively for those 9 months, absolutely. Again, I'm not calling myself a saint. However, my intentions within the situation are different from what he and his friends claimed they were. I am aware that by writing this document, I am talking directly to him, which is something Charlie said I should never do again; but I do not care about that.

If he and the others do somehow happen to listen to what I have to say, there is only one thing I want from these people, and that is a public apology. Given how they all went with the decision to burn me at the stake for everyone to see, I deserve an apology for this entire mess, especially from Leo himself, although knowing them, they will most likely never apologize to me. It was his decision primarily to do all of this, so if anyone has to apologize to me for all of this, it has to be him.

Now I want to give a big thanks to my family and my psychologist for always being there for me, and ensuring that everything will be fine. I am not sure when this document will be posted publicly, if at all, but writing all of this really helped me out a lot to get this off my chest.
